

'Promise them anything' still byword of politicians

BY JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer

In America, land of promise, the season of promises ends today.

Here, as a last lingering hurrah before the polls close, is a composite of actual campaign promises taken from actual speeches of actual candidates for Congress across the nation. Ready?

"My fellow Americans:

"It has been a year of profound rise and fall, with a lot of uncertainty.

"During my political life I have never made a political promise. Today I make a specific promise. If elected, I promise to end inflation.

"I promise to curb the government's money supply, not just its spending.

"Ecology is the motherhood of politics today, but in the crisis between ecology and your job, I'll be in your corner.

"Why don't you send a fed-up taxpayer to Congress instead of a politician?

"The country is on the verge of national bankruptcy. We need rational and meaningful changes.

"I propose formation of marijuana-growing communes as a way to stimulate the economy. This is something for the people!"

"It's time to stay off the tangents and keep your eye on the ball.

"Solar energy is pollution free, inexhaustible and cannot be cut off by a foreign country. In my judgment, the sun can provide the answer to most of our solar needs.

"I pledge to break up the social club in Washington by limiting House members to two consecutive terms.

"This is your office, not just mine alone.

"I will not sign a fair campaign pledge because what I think the people want is not people pledging what they want to do but people doing what the voters want them to do.

"What we really need in this country is not one more of my party in Congress. What we need is about 30 more. From northern states.

"We need a foolproof minimum tax.

"No matter which exemptions a person claims he still ought to pay an amount of tax commensurate with his high income.

"I will cut by 20 per cent the $44,000 per year spent on my staff.

"I will return 10 per cent of my $42,500 salary.

"The salaries of congressmen should be cut by 5 per cent each year the federal budget is not balanced.

"Social Security should be replaced with savings bonds, and the government should mature these bonds by giving the money to banks."

Finally, my fellow Americans:

"I object to surveys on voting records and demand a retraction from every newspaper, radio and television station in my district.

"Thank you."

World food bank proposed

Near death

Workers at the Khilgaon gruel kitchen in Dacca, Bangladesh, lift an elderly man who collapsed while waiting in line for food Monday. Workers carried the man, who had traveled from a suburban village and waited for hours in the sun, into the kitchen's medical room where a doctor said he had only a slim chance for survival. Officials estimate that more than 15,000 people have died of starvation and hunger-related diseases in Bangladesh in the past two months. (AP wirephoto)

ROME (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today asked the other major grain suppliers to join the United States in a food bank to ensure that "within a decade no child will go to bed hungry ... no family will fear for its next day's bread."

As the World Food Conference convened, with Kissinger as its main opening-day speaker, thousands of leftist students marched in downtown Rome to protest the American's presence in Italy. Terrorists attacked an American target for the fourth day.

Four young men stormed the Rome office of Honeywell Corp., the electronics firm, beat up a woman telephone operator and set the place afire with a homemade bomb. The Honeywell offices are about two miles from the Colosseum, where a rally by a dozen Marxist splinter groups ended about half an hour before the attack.

Kissinger told the conference that the aim of the United States is "a bold objective" to cope with "the source of hunger" around the world, the lack of grain stockpiles.

The system he envisioned would include reserves for emergency food relief and punitive measures for countries that failed to meet their commitments.

Kissinger also urged newly rich oil producing states to help poor countries buy food, fertilizer and farm equipment. Quadrupled prices for crude oil over the last year have produced a surplus of around $60 billion in the oil states.

At the same time, they have forced hard times on poor countries that have had to decide whether to spend scant foreign exchange on oil or on food.

The grain supply deficit in developing countries will reach about 85 million tons by 1985, Kissinger said. Financing them to increase production "must become one of the priority objectives of the countries and institutions that have the major influence in the international monetary system," he said.

Israelis raid village in Lebanon

BEIRUT (AP) — Israeli troops swooped down on the south Lebanon town of Majdal Zoun in helicopters at dawn today, blew up the village chief's house, then carried the man and his eldest son off to Israel.

"Both were known to have cooperated with terrorists," the Israeli government announced. It said Mukhtar Aref Suleiman and his 15-year-old son Ali were being detained for questioning.

The raid came as influential Palestinians said they would escalate their conflict with Jordan's King Hussein over future control of the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan River and would oppose the Mideast peace efforts of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Witnesses said about 150 Israeli troops marched into Majdal Zoun shortly after helicopters overflew the village, which is set among tobacco fields and olive groves six miles from the Israeli border.

They arrested the mukhtar and two of his sons, ordered the rest of the family to leave, then planted explosives and blew up the house. The younger boy, 12-year-old Mustafa, was released after he cried all the way to the helicopter.

It was the third Israeli attack on Lebanese territory in five days but the first time in months that an infiltration squad has reported bringing back Lebanese prisoners.

The Lebanese-Israeli frontier has been tense since Oct. 12 when at least five Arab guerrillas crossed into Israel and went into hiding. Israelis thought the guerrillas planned raids to coincide with Kissinger's visit to Jerusalem, but the men have never been found.

Since then, Israeli forces have killed three Arab infiltrators, shelled a Palestinian refugee camp from the sea and blown up houses in two Lebanese villages, claiming they were terrorist bases. Arabs have fired several rockets across the frontier at Jewish settlements.

A guerrilla newspaper in Beirut made the promise that Palestinians would step up their conflict with Hussein. The newspaper, Falastin Al Thawra, said the king's recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization's right to set up an independent state if and when Israel withdraws from the west bank was "just a tactical retreat."

"The dispute has not been resolved yet," the paper said. "It should not be forgotten that the Jordanian regime remains an imperialist base, like Israel."

Hussein, who had long expected to set up a semi-autonomous Palestinian state under Jordan's win on the west bank,

Judge murdered in courtroom

WANAQUE, N.J. (AP) — A bullet fired through a window fatally wounded a municipal judge while he was holding court. Police termed the death a definite case of premeditated murder.

About 50 persons were in the courtroom. No one else was hurt.

Municipal Court Judge Joseph Crescente, 71, was sitting in his second-floor courtroom Monday night when the shot pierced a window and a venetian blind behind his bench and struck him in the back. He was holding a probable cause hearing at the time.

The magistrate died two hours later at Chilton Memorial Hospital in nearby Pompton Plains.

Officers in this Passaic County community of 11,000 said they were looking for a young dark-skinned male. Witnesses said they saw him aim a rifle at the window of the courtroom from the street.

Witnesses told officers the man fled on foot. The weapon used in the slaying, believed to be a .22-caliber rifle, had not been found, police said.

A detective on the 15-member Wanauque police force said all "past, present and future cases" the judge was involved in were being checked for possible leads.

"He flinched in his chair and said,

"What was that?," said Capt. Joseph Cisco, who was in the courtroom at the time of the shooting.

Cisco said he went to the judge, loosened his robe and saw blood on his back. He said others in the courtroom scrambled for cover.

"As far as we're concerned, there is no question that this was a case of premeditated murder," said a police dispatcher in Pompton Lakes, which serves as a central communications center for the area.

A spokesman at Wanauque police headquarters said, "It had to be a case of premeditated murder the way it occurred."

Crescente, a retired stationmaster with the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad, was the father of six. He operated an insurance agency here.

Crescente was one of the last municipal court judges in New Jersey who was not a member of the bar. A law approved in the 1940s required all judges who took the bench subsequent to its passage be attorneys.

The last homicide occurred here in 1913, according to police.

Wanauque is about 10 miles south of the New York State border and some 35 miles northwest of New York City.

Father held in Halloween death

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) — Police today charged Ronald Clark O'Bryan, 30, in the trick-or-treat poisoning of his 8-year-old son.

The boy died Thursday night after eating cyanide in candy collected at Halloween.

Police arrested O'Bryan, an optician who lives in neighboring Deer Park, late Monday night and charged him with murder.

A clerk in the office of Justice of the Peace V. L. West said O'Bryan was being held in lieu of $100,000 bond.

His son, Timothy M. O'Bryan, died late Thursday night after eating cyanide in a package of powdered candy.

Poison was also found in four other similar candy containers collected by other trick-or-treating youngsters Hal-

Watergate 'just another white-collar crime:' Dash

BY CLIFF MILLER

Post-Crescent staff writer

HOWARDS GROVE There was nothing unusual about Watergate — it was just another example of white-collar crime, according to the chief Senate Watergate Committee attorney.

The Watergate offenders were "as American as Madison Avenue, pollution, consumer fraud, income tax evasion and traffic ticket fixing," Samuel Dash told an audience of students and faculty at Lakeland College Monday night.

He predicted that unless the public recognizes the White House crimes for what they were, there will be similar incidents in the future.

Dash offered a mixture of methods to head off future Watergates, ranging from higher standards of conduct for private citizens to several specific improvements in the criminal justice system.

Unless citizens set higher standards for themselves, they cannot expect more from public officials, he contended. It is an unfortunate rule, he said, that "government officials seek the lowest level of behavior acquiesced by the public."

Continual pressure on government officials by the public, an alert press, better methods of insuring that honest, capable persons hold public office, police department attention at all levels to white-collar crime, better pay and more modern training and equipment for police were among preventive steps Dash suggested.

He said President Ford "demonstrated a failure to understand the lessons of Watergate" in his timing of the pardon of former President Nixon and in the reason he gave for it.

Dash said the pardon ignored the gravity of what the former president had done, and the need of the American public to have full disclosure of facts in the case.

Ford said Nixon had suffered enough and the country needed to get Watergate behind it as his chief reasons for the pardon, Dash recalled.

But the lawyer argued that the criminal justice system takes health into account in scheduling trials and handing down punishments, and that Nixon had resigned to avoid impeachment and trial by the Senate and removal from office which seemed otherwise inevitable.

Dash said that it would be "a terrible rule" if the nation "were ready to say that only the poor and the powerless have not suffered enough" and must go to trial.

"That is the lesson of Watergate: The president is under the law."

The pardon, said Dash, "in effect dismissed the special prosecutor" in Nixon's case, he contended. Recalling the so-called "Saturday night massacre" when Nixon fired Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, Dash said Ford had found a second method of firing the Coal talks break off

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide coal mine shutdown appeared all but certain after union negotiators walked out of contract talks early today and accused management of forcing a strike.

"With what they've handed us tonight, they've declared a strike in the coal fields," said President Arnold Miller of the United Mine Workers as he left a union caucus without notifying the mine owners waiting in a nearby room.

"There's not a sufficient amount of time left for ratification, and the membership would not ratify what they gave us," Miller declared.

Guy Farmer, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, later called Miller's statement "incredible," and said he couldn't "conceive how anyone could say what we gave them was a provocation for a strike."

The UMW's current contract covering

120,000 members in 25 states expires at 12:01 a.m. Nov. 12 and coal miners have a tradition of "no contract, no work." The unions say it would take about 10 days for a contract to be ratified by the membership, which produces two-thirds of the nation's coal.

A walkout probably would begin Saturday morning at the end of this week's final production shift. The miners would be unlikely to return to work the following Monday, the final day of the contract.

The negotiations, which resumed Monday night after a 24-hour impasse, collapsed again several hours after management presented what Farmer said was a substantial offer wrapping up all issues.

A short strike is unlikely to cause any serious disruptions but a walkout lasting more than two weeks could have "a very serious impact" on the nation's sagging economy, Albert Rees, director of the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability, said Monday.

With coal stockpiles already low, industry spokesmen say steel mills and coal-burning electric power plants would be hard hit by a strike.

The Tennessee Valley Authority, the nation's largest producer of electricity, says its coal reserves have dwindled to about a 40-day supply and already has asked customers to cut back use of electricity 20 per cent. Steel companies have a two-to-four week supply of coal on hand.

Steel production would begin to falter after the first week of a coal strike, and layoffs would begin to ripple through the industry and eventually spread to other industries such as automobiles and construction, which depend on steel.

Stampp wants more money from state for welfare aid

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

On the recommendation of Outagamie County Welfare Director James E. Stampp, the board of social services Monday voted unanimously against contracting for state welfare funding until more money is assured.

Beginning in 1975, the state will fully fund mandated welfare programs in Wisconsin counties, within established limits.

Stampp said he could "swallow" most funding provisions of the proposed contract sent him by the state, but spending permitted for necessary salaries and equipment in administering the income maintenance and medical assistance programs falls about $53,000 short, he said.

In other business Monday, the social services board

• Heard Stampp complain that Corp. Counsel William Schuh has not complied with a request to draft a resolution asking for the hiring of three more social workers for the youth services bureau.

"Sometimes I think I could get an attorney friend to do more service for this department than we get out of the corporation counsel," Stampp said.

The welfare board, by a 5-2 vote, recently approved adding the three workers after Stampp, the district attorney's office and Juvenile Court Judge R. Thomas Cane said help was needed to deal with a growing juvenile crime problem in Outagamie County.

County Board Chairman Eugene Higgins advised that the welfare board could ask for the hirings at next week's county board budget meeting.

• Approved, after considerable discussion, including $39,225 in the 1975 county welfare budget for purchase of service from Big Brothers of the Fox Valley Region, Inc. Some board members were uncomfortable with the 60 per cent increase in Outagamie County's proposed 1975 funding.

Stampp said the increase could be justified because Big Brothers is a new and expanding program in this county and has planned for a big hike in boy-man matches next year. Stampp said that under the funding proposal, each Outagamie County match would initially cost about $330.

County Executive Alvin E. Woehler had cut all Big Brothers funding in his executive budget.

• Heard Supv. Emmett Root of rural Hortonville charge that there appears to be "collusion" between Supv. Nick Karras of the county board's property committee and Woehler in blocking attempts for welfare department use of St. Mary Catholic Church convent. Root speculated it was because they want "nothing short of a big complex" in the Bomb threat clears schools

CLINTONVILLE — A bomb threat Monday afternoon prompted an hour-long search by fire department, rescue squad, school and police department personnel in the public schools here, but turned out to be a hoax.

More than 1,000 students had to be evacuated from their classrooms and sheltered at the St. Martin Lutheran Church and School.

Police Chief M. M. Bodoh reported that at 1:25 p.m. Monday, the central public school switchboard received a bomb scare call. A male voice said, "There is a bomb in the building — everybody evacuate." The caller repeated the message and then hung up.

The junior high school, with 509 students, and the Longfellow-Rexford elementary schools, with a combined enrollment of 338, were evacuated.

area of the health center.

Supv. Daniel Versteegen of Little Chute said he would continue to meet with Karras's committee on rental or purchase of the unused convent.

• Was informed by an official of the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services that former state Atty. Gen. Robert Warren advised that welfare board members have full access to confidential welfare records.

The same liberty is not extended to county board members.

Five of the seven welfare board members also serve as the county board's health committee. Some of them have tried unsuccessfully to get County Nurse Virginia Lemon to allow them access to patient medical records. She has held that they are strictly confidential. Supv. Herman Ripp said he will seek a legal opinion.

In discussing the shortage of state funds allowed for county welfare administration next year, Stampp pointed out that he needs $257,000 and the state contract allows for $203,730.

About $231,000 will be spent this year for administration of the income maintenance and medical assistance programs which, Stampp said, encompasses nearly his entire financial staff.

The alternative to getting more state money, Stampp said, would be to cut administrative staff. "I won't do that," he said. "I'll fight the state on this."

He speculated there will be other counties that will buck the state on various aspects of the new contracts, which must be settled by Dec. 31.

Counties are not permitted to supplement the mandated programs with local funding, Stampp said the attorney general has been asked for an opinion on that provision.

Versteegen said that the state legislature might provide for additional welfare funding to meet county needs when it goes back into session in January.

Trustees push funding for UW FV expansion

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

MENASHA — Trustees of the University of Wisconsin Center-Fox Valley agreed unanimously Monday afternoon to continue to fight for funds to buy 10 adjacent acres for future expansion of the two-year college's campus.

The two trustees from the Winnebago County Board agreed to attempt to gain board reconsideration of the resolution that it killed last week for providing half of the $100,000 to buy the 10 acres.

The two trustees from Outagamie County, an equal owner with Winnebago of the campus land and buildings, said they would ask their county board next week to adopt a resolution providing $50,000 contingent on Winnebago's contributing its share.

The Outagamie trustees expressed serious concern about Winnebago's unwillingness to support the purchase. Supv. Nick Karras, Appleton, suggested that Winnebago might consider turning over the facility to Outagamie if it didn't want to support future growth of it.

However, the four trustees made it clear during the discussion that they would prefer to have the joint arrangement continued. Under it, the counties share equally the cost of maintenance and building operation, and the UW System pays for the faculty.

The vote for reconsideration will be sought at the Winnebago board meeting Monday evening. Trustees Archie Daggett and Carl Woizeski, also supervisors, said they had hopes of convincing at least one supervisor who voted in the majority for rejecting the expansion money to ask for the reconsideration.

The vote to turn down the request for half the $100,000 to buy 10 acres just west of the campus was 23-18, with five supervisors absent. The UW Center has a 90-day option to buy the land for possible future use, such as for a gymnasium or other facilities, to give the center a well-rounded educational program.

Daggett blamed the defeat of the expansion bid proposal on "a clique (of county supervisors) that can only see the Oshkosh university."

He said two supervisors were UW-Oshkosh teachers and one a UW chaplain. The instructors are David Loy and Franklin Utech, and the chaplain is Donald Collins. They all voted against the land purchase funding.

Daggett and Woizeski intend to confer with the Winnebago corporation counsel about a possible conflict of interest in these men's voting on such a measure, particularly the two teachers.

Woizeski said the defeat can be attributed to the north-south county split, with the south supporting UW-Oshkosh and the north, the UW Center. About two-thirds of UW FV students come from Outagamie and one-third, from Winnebago.

Karras said he believed that Outagamie would go along with the land purchase, if Winnebago did, but he asked what would happen if Outagamie went along and Winnebago did not.

If the two can't agree, he wondered, would Winnebago be willing to turn over its half ownership of the campus facilities to Outagamie? Daggett said there hadn't been much thought of that among Winnebago officials.

Karras then questioned whether Winnebago had a right under the joint arrangement to restrict the growth of the campus. Some Winnebago opponents of the expansion believe the campus may be phased out eventually, even though its enrollment has grown dramatically in the past two years.

Dean Rue Johnson has contended that the campus has a bright future and should be rounded with adequate facilities for all its needs.

Supv. Alphonse Lewandowski, Appleton, cautioned Karras that he didn't think it was appropriate to issue an ultimatum to Winnebago, even though he and Karras may have been thinking of the lone ownership as an alternative.

Woizeski said the Winnebago board had been influenced by arguments from the UW professors, and that it was difficult to combat their persuasiveness.

Johnson said the dilemma raised serious questions about the joint arrangement, the role of the trustees and future of the campus. There apparently is no written document on the joint ownership, except a deed. The trustees didn't know the location of the deed.

Johnson said there should be some written agreement to handle differences such as this one. He also said the trustees had only the respective status of a board committee, with recommendation duties, but no powers, if the two county boards couldn't agree.

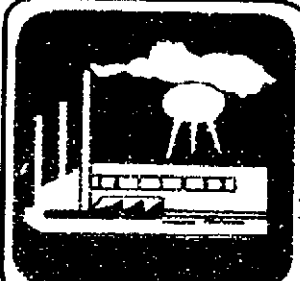

Johnson also said it was a "fallacy concept" for the counties to think that they were the major financial contributors at the campus, an argument used by opponents who compared costs with

Convicted book seller remains free on bond

A former Appleton book store clerk convicted nearly four years ago of selling obscene magazines has served only a few days of his three-year prison sentence.

Erral J. Simpson, 37, formerly of route 3, Shawano, is still free on $8,000 bond, even though two years ago he lost his appeal to the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

Although his Milwaukee attorney, James Walrath, could not be reached for comment, it was learned that he will bring motions before federal court to have proceedings against Simpson dismissed on grounds that the state statute under which he was prosecuted might be unconstitutionally vague.

Circuit Court Judge Gordon Myse said he does not intend to order that Simpson be taken into custody and start serving his sentence until present appeal proceedings are settled.

Myse said Walrath has been in contact with his office.

Simpson was charged with three counts of selling obscene magazines after an Appleton detective and a former assistant district attorney bought the items from Simpson in April and July, 1970 at The Appleton Book Store, 902 W. Wisconsin Ave. The store has since closed.

Police and former Outagamie County Dist. Atty. James R. Long raided the store on July 8, 1970, and seized $12,000 worth of books and magazines.

It later was determined that the items were seized during an illegal search of the store.

A Circuit Court jury found Simpson guilty in December, 1970. In 1969, Simpson was fined $500 after being found guilty of one count of selling an obscene magazine at the former W. Wisconsin Avenue store where he was a clerk.

Former Circuit Court Judge Andrew Parnell, after the 1970 jury finding, sentenced Simpson to three years in the state prison.

Simpson was freed shortly after his arrival at the prison when Milwaukee attorney Robert Friebert posted $8,000 bond for him. Parnell allowed the bond pending appeal.

There is a difference of opinion over whether Simpson should have been allowed to remain free for at least the two years since the Wisconsin Supreme Court affirmed the local Circuit Court judgment.

Some local officials familiar with the case say that Simpson was not taken into custody after his appeal failed because of an oversight in the clerk of courts office or the district attorney's office.

The clerk of courts office has a notice of the Dec. 4, 1972 state supreme court decision. Asst. Dist. Atty. William Lundstrom said his office's files do not contain the high court notice.

More ancient tree fragments found

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

Excavating at the Wisconsin Telephone Co. site at Washington and Superior streets has produced more of the estimated 10,000-year-old tree parts preserved in a wet, silty clay about 60-70 feet below the city's surface.

The pieces of wood are from the Two Creeks forest that once covered much of northeastern Wisconsin, but was buried about 10,000 years ago by the most recent glacier of the Wisconsin Glacial Epoch. Earlier estimates had that glacial period at over 11,000 years ago.

Excavators have found similar pieces of wood — some weighing many pounds — at the construction site for The Post-Crescent addition, the new U.S. Post Office and the new police station.

Harvey Johnson of Berners, Schober and Kilp, Green Bay architectural engineering firm, said such wood pieces were found in the 1950s when the Green Bay City Hall was constructed. The pieces were identified by the Neville Museum, Green Bay, which had seen them before.

William Kwasny, of the Soil Testing Service of Wisconsin, Inc., Green Bay, said that the Wisconsin Glacial Epoch had a 50,000-60,000-year duration that ended 10,000 years ago, but that the most recent portion of it affected the Appleton deposits.

He said the Two Creeks forest area was first discovered in the early 1900's when the wave action of Lake Michigan uncovered several tipped-over trees near Two Creeks. The trees were all tipped to the southwest, indicating that the glacier had come from the northeast, he added.

The tree pieces found on the Wisconsin Telephone site were excavated by Wisconsin Caisson, Inc., Menomonee Falls, which is auguring about 80 feet down for the concrete, steel-reinforced foundations for the telephone company's new office building.

William Bischoff, foreman, estimated the pieces were found about 58-65 feet below the basement, which is about 10 feet below the surface of the road. Many have been found, he added, and one man took a bushel basket full of them home.

Bischoff said the pieces found in the clayish-silt material are heavy because they are waterlogged. When they dry out, they become light, almost like balsam wood, he added.

Some of the pieces found in northeastern Wisconsin have been identified as Black Spruce. Johnson noted that trees that could survive in the cold climate created by the slow-moving glaciers would be expected to be found.

He said the chemical reaction of the wood and the clay soil has caused the clay in the area to turn from a reddish brown to a blue color, and it is softer than normal clay.

Several years ago, workmen working on the Walnut Street sewer found some pieces of similar wood about 50 feet below the surface. At that time, the tree parts were estimated to be 11,600 years old.

Wood felled by last glacier

Tree parts estimated to be 10,000 years old have been found by workmen excavating at the Wisconsin Telephone Co. site in downtown Appleton. Fragments like those pictured once were part of the Two Creeks forest that covered the area before the last glacier.

"Squeaky wheels," featuring games for wheelchair patients, will begin at 10:30 a.m. Fridays. Crafts are worked on on Friday afternoons and a crafts discovery graduation is planned for Nov. 15.

Bingo is played on Wednesday afternoons.

The Rev. Reuben Carlson will conduct worship services at 9:45 a.m. Sundays and Wednesdays in Bethany Chapel. Mass is offered every Friday afternoon by the Rev. Claude Zabinski.

Public and parochial schools in Clintonville schedule conferences

CLINTONVILLE — Public and parochial schools will be in recess Thursday through Monday due to the Wisconsin Education Association convention at Milwaukee and parent-teacher conferences.

Public school students will not have classes Thursday and Friday because of the convention. Parent-teacher conferences are scheduled from 12:30-5 and from 6-9:30 p.m. Monday.

Students of St. Martin Lutheran School will not have classes on Friday due to the fall teacher conference at St. James Lutheran School, Shawano. There will be no school on Monday because of parent-teacher conferences. Classes will meet on Thursday.

Parent-teacher conferences at St. Rose Catholic School are set for Thursday, and there will be no school on Friday. However, students at St. Rose will have classes on Monday.

Halloween winners

CLINTONVILLE — Winners have been named in the student council's Halloween costume contest Friday at the junior high school.

Judging was done in three categories — funniest, scariest and most original.

Winners in grade 9 were Cindy Beery, funniest; Tammy Hintz, most original; and Bill Lorge, scariest; grade 8, Barbara Erdmann, funniest; Jerry Mosser, most original; and Tammy Flink, scariest; and grade 7, Bonnie Sawall, funniest; Heather Strong, most original; and Joe Orr, scariest.

Each winner received a $1 gift certificate sponsored by the student council and the New Star Lunch.

Wittenberg poppy sale

WITTENBERG — A sale of poppies, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, will be conducted Friday and Saturday here.

Head for polls

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stark arrive to vote this morning at Columbus School, the 1st Ward voting place in Appleton. Polls throughout the city will remain open until 8 p.m. tonight. (Post-Crescent photo)

W-F students invite Africans

WEYAUWEGA — The board of education recently granted permission to the student council to arrange for two African students to study in the Weyauwega-Fremont system during the next school term.

Total cost for transporting the students round trip will be $2,000. The student council is making plans for numerous fund-raising projects, including a bake sale, beginning at 9 a.m. Friday at the Laundromat here. Council members are asking interested citizens to donate baked goods or patronize the daylong sale.

The African students will be the first foreign students to study at Weyauwega High School.

Welding, farm records classes slated to begin

WITTENBERG — Accounting and farm records classes, offered by the North Central Technical Institute, will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Ten sessions will be offered. A fee of $5.50 is to be paid on opening night, when registration also can be made.

A beginning welding class will offer 16 sessions, and the fee is $18. After completing this course, students are eligible to qualify for basic welding tests given by various welding companies.

This class is limited to 10-12 people.

Masters, Johnson to appear

NEENAH — Dr. William Masters and Virginia Johnson, noted for their research on human sexuality, will speak at a program sponsored by the Fox Valley Academy of Medicine Thursday at Armstrong High School.

The session is by invitation only. The topic will be "Facts and Fallacies of Human Sexual Response."

The team has headed the Reproductive Biology Research Foundation in St. Louis since 1964, but became known throughout the country for their book, "Human Sexual Response," published in 1966. Their second book, "Human Sexual Inadequacy," was printed in 1970.

Masters and Johnson are married to each other. Masters is a physician and a graduate of the University of Rochester School of Medicine and is currently professor of clinical obstetrics and gynecology at Washington University School of Medicine.

Johnson is a doctoral candidate at Washington University.

Squirrel causes power outage Sunday morning in Clintonville vicinity

CLINTONVILLE — Customers of the Wisconsin Power and Light Co. in the rural areas near Clintonville, Embarrass and the Clover Leaf Lakes experienced an electrical power outage from 7:45-9 a.m. Sunday.

According to Dick Reese, manager, the outage was caused by a squirrel when it made contact with energized equipment in a substation. This caused damage to some equipment and the operation of automatic protective equipment which isolated the substation from the company's network.

Service was restored when temporary repairs were made by local linemen. Permanent repairs were made Monday.

UWO. He said that by paying salaries and other academic costs, the UW System was spending five times as much as the counties at the facility.

As the trustees prepare to seek the purchase agreement, UW Center students have been circulating petitions and contacting Winnebago supervisors to urge support of the expansion.

Much of the pressure has been directed at four Neenah county board supervisors — George Christoph, Clarence Loehning, David Nobbe and Vernon Zingsheim.

In a letter to them, Jerry Keepers, Neenah, challenged certain statements by State Rep. Richard Flintrop, Oshkosh, who issued a letter calling for the defeat of the expansion money proposal last week.

In other action, the trustees endorsed a proposal to prepare the school for cable television tie-in with the other Neenah-Menasha schools to allow theater televising of speakers to other center rooms and to handle public television programming. The wiring and equipment cost will be about $1,200.

Dist. Atty. John Ensley said it is his understanding Simpson could remain free on bond pending the end of the appeal route, in the U.S. Supreme Court.

A spokesman in the Wisconsin Attorney General's office told The Post-Crescent this morning that under state statute, if a defendant is allowed his freedom under bail pending appeal, he must surrender to the sheriff of the county in which he was tried.

If he does not surrender, local officials have the responsibility of taking him into custody, the spokesman said.

The district attorney does not have discretion in permitting him to remain free, he said.

Parnell, who had retired by the time the state court upheld his court's judgment, said it also was his understanding that Simpson was required to begin serving his sentence after the appeal failed.

Ensley said he believes Simpson is still living in Wisconsin, although his files show no recent address.

Keeping posted

CLINTONVILLE — "Surprises, Surprises" will be the theme of the program at the Women's Christian Fellowship meeting Thursday at Christ Congregational Church. A 6 p.m. dinner will precede the program. Each woman has been asked to bring a copy of her favorite recipe.

SHIOCTON — The Music Parents will sponsor a bake sale Nov. 13 in conjunction with parent-teacher conference day. The sale will begin at 12:30 p.m. Baked goods should be brought in early.

NEW LONDON — Dennis Dornfield of the United Health Service Sheltered Workshop will speak at the Lions Club meeting at 6:30 p.m. today at the Rainbow.

Fremont Cub Scouts to take wreath orders

FREMONT — Christmas wreaths will be sold by Cub Scout Pack 145 to raise funds for scouting activities during the next year.

Members and their parents will take orders for the evergreen wreaths Saturday and delivery will be made later. They will canvass Fremont, Tustin and Orihula areas. Orders also may be placed by calling William Mathwig, cub master.

Bobcat awards have been presented to Steve Gurgel, Kenneth Van Maastricht, Larry Van Maastricht, Tom Mathwig, Joe Woods and Kenneth Kasper. Chris Tessen received the Wolf award.

John Meydam, Todd Tessen, Jeff Wisner and Jim Watson received their Webelos colors, neckerchiefs, slides and their Forester and Outdoorsman awards.

The Cub Scouts also staged an old-fashioned Halloween party for about 50 parents and guest and attended the Holiday on Ice show in Green Bay.

Stick With Us, You'll Wear Diamonds

This exquisite jewelry collection for ladies and gentlemen includes elegant simulated diamonds, sapphire, pearls, jade, opal, ruby and emerald all set in pendants, cufflinks, earrings, and, of course, rings. Each diamond is white synthetic spinel — hand polished — with 58 facets per diamond. Every simulated diamond in the Barrington Collection is so close to a real diamond in hardness that it will cut glass. All stones are hand mounted in sterling silver or 18K heavy gold electrum settings.

The above selection is just a part of the large Barrington Collection now on display at all Mutual offices.

Birnamwood refused train crossing signals

BIRNAMWOOD — The state Public Service Commission (PSC) has turned down a petition for automatic signals at a Chicago & North Western Railway crossing here and recommended the addition of stop signs.

The crossing on Hummingbird Road near the town line of Wittenberg and Birnamwood was the scene of a double fatality in March, 1974, when two students were killed and two others injured while driving to church on Good Friday.

More than 140 residents of the Wittenberg-Birnamwood School District filed a petition asking for automatic signals at the grade crossing, and the PSC held a hearing on July 25 at the Shawano County Courthouse.

At that time protective devices at the crossing consisted of two statutory crossing signs and two advance warning signs. It was pointed out in testimony that brush and trees on all corners and earth embankments on two sides obstruct a motorist's view of the crossing. The summary noted that in addition to the accident last March, there had been another fatality at the scene in 1957.

The PSC recommended that the Town of Birnamwood, at its own expense, install and maintain two arterial stop signs and two stop-ahead signs at the crossing. The stop signs would be placed on the existing statutory crossing signs.

According to the order, either party may file a written exception to the summary or decision of the hearing officer.

In its testimony, the railroad said that a 24-hour manual traffic count on June 25 showed a total of 38 automobiles, three bicycles, four trucks and four farm tractors at the crossing. One train in each direction travels the line daily, except on Sunday, with a maximum speed of 35 miles per hour, according to the company.

Proponents of the petition argued that the town road has greater usage during the school year because of the high school and that the crossing is used by school district buses. The crossing is two miles north of the school.

Unfinished exempted equipment list delays W-B tax levy, board learns WITTENBERG — A delay in notifying the state Department of Revenue of the list of equipment eligible for exemption under the new industrial machinery and equipment regulations was reported Monday to the Wittenberg-Birnamwood Board of Education.

Carl Larsen, school district clerk, informed municipal clerks of the delay last week. The list of exempted equipment must be made before the 1974-75 school district tax levy can be computed.

The board also announced that schools will be dismissed at noon Wednesday to allow teachers to attend the state teachers' convention at Milwaukee. Classes will resume Monday.

Band anniversary supper Nov. 17

WEYAUWEGA — Reservations can be made until Thursday with Mrs. Gary Weiss, route 2, Fremont, or Ralph Peterson, Weyauwega, for the Nov. 17 buffet supper celebrating the 50th anniversary of the high school band.

The cost is $2 for the supper, which is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. The anniversary concert will be at 2 p.m.

The anniversary committee still needs the names and addresses of some alumni, directors and friends of the band so invitations can be extended.

After the concert at the middle school, guests may view displays of pictures, awards, uniforms and other memorabilia at the high school.

Two-day wrestling meet causes changes in sport slate at New London

NEW LONDON — Because the public schools will be the host for a wrestling sectional here Feb. 21-22, some changes have been made in the senior high school winter sports schedule, according to Larry Graves, athletic director.

The basketball games with Omro have been rescheduled to Feb. 22 at Omro and Jan. 10 here. The Jan. 10 wrestling match that was scheduled to be played here will be played at Omro.

Announcement was made that Melvin Leonard began his duties Friday as home-school coordinator for Indians in the district. The position was authorized by the recent Johnson-O'Malley Act.

In other action, the board:

- Authorized payment of $70,287 in bills.
- Approved 34 plans of service concerning Chapter 89.
- Authorized George Koonz, elementary principal, to attend an administrators' convention at Minneapolis.
- Learned that some dissatisfaction exists about the events calendar for the Christmas season and heard a request that a permanent schedule be established soon.
- Discussed released time of students for religious instruction. Area clergymen are working with the board to set up a program for the 1975-76 school year.

Board member Frank Papenfuss said October receipts for the district were $35,568. He also announced that $400,000 in state aids were received in September, with another $200,000 expected both this month and in December and $196,000 on Jan. 1. The balance in aids of $347,722 is expected in May, 1975, which would bring the school year total to $1,395,722.

The board had been notified by Barbara Thompson, state superintendent of public instruction, that the district was eligible for aid this year, but added that three of the 13 requirements of Chapter 90 which must be met need to be improved by next school year. Thompson specified policies and procedures as an area needing to be improved.

CESA gives sessions on metric system

WEYAUWEGA — Teachers from school districts in the Cooperative Educational Service Agency (CESA) No. 8 have been attending classes for the past three Saturdays to learn more about the metric system and how to teach it to their students.

Representing the Weyauwega-Fremont school system were Don Chase, high school; L.G. Holley, middle school; and Mrs. Shary Schmies, elementary school.

George B. McDowell, editorial manager of J.J. Keller & Associates, Inc., Neenah, told the teachers that most progress in the United States in conversion to the metric system is in major industry, including packaged food products.

A 10-year changeover plan is in operation. Dr. Walter Leffin and Dr. Robert Pickering of the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh urged cooperation of the entire teaching staff. Math and science teachers alone cannot carry the load if teaching metric measures is to be successful, they noted.

"It is obvious we are going to have to teach kids. They are going to live in a metric world," Leffin said, adding that this country is one of six in the world not using the metric system.

The sessions also explored the background and history of the system, use of metric measures and implementation of the system in the classroom.

Shiocton pops concert scheduled for Nov. 21

SHIOCTON — The high school and cadet bands and the jazz ensemble will present a pops concert at 8 p.m. Nov. 21 in the high school gymnasium.

The musical groups are under the direction of Judy Conradt and Donna Diermeier. The Music Parents will sponsor a candy sale before the concert.

Brillion Jaycees slate dinner meeting at Hilbert around theme of energy

BRILLION — The Jaycees have scheduled a Thursday dinner meeting at Deno's Supper Club, Hilbert. The cocktail hour begins at 6:30 p.m., dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Harrison Weaver, vice president of engineering at Brillion Iron Works, will discuss energy, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Act and their effects on industry.
